

You're a great student, aren't you?

① Work with a partner.

One person reads any sentence.

Partner, repeat it.

Change "I" to "You".

Add a tag:

- aren't you?
- can't you?
- don't you?

The first person answers:

- Yes, I am. Thanks.
- Yes, I can. Thanks.
- Yes, I do. Thanks.

Example:

I am very smart.

(aren't)

I love learning English.

(don't)

I can learn quickly and easily.

(can't)

I like to read English books and magazines.

(don't)

I am an excellent student.

(aren't)

I enjoy listening to English.

(don't)

I like to try new things.

(don't)

I am learning interesting new things every day.

(aren't)

I can learn from my mistakes.

(can't)

I learn more English when I work with my friends.

(don't)

I help my friends because they help me.

(don't)

I am learning faster and more easily than ever before.

(aren't)

② Now change parts. The other partner reads the sentences.

③ Now put away the paper.

How many sentences can you remember together?

What we think, we become.

- The Buddha

Language focus: tag questions

Positive psychology focus: positive self talk

© 2012 Marc Helgesen,
Tim Murphey & Charles Adamson
OK to copy.
www.ELTandHappiness.com